S. ST. J. MORGAN COLLECTION OF KELLOGG PRINTS

From time to time mention has been made in these pages of large donations of Kellogg prints from Mr. S. St. J. Morgan. The collection now consists of more than three hundred prints, maps, books and illustrations. The term Kellogg is loosely applied to the work of any of the four Kellogg brothers. They were the sons of Daniel and Susanna (Griggs) Kellogg of Tolland, the father being a goldsmith and clockmaker who had apprenticed under Daniel Burnap of East Windsor and Coventry.

Jarvis Griggs Kellogg was born October 5, 1805 and died July 22, 1873. He was an eminent steel engraver trained by Oliver Pelton. The greater part of his professional life was spent in Boston where he was noted for his skill as an engraver of heads. At his death it was said that his "portraits of the elder and the second Governors Winthrop were among the finest specimens of American line engraving."

Daniel Wright Kellogg was born July 21, 1807 and died at Jefferson, Wisconsin December 28, 1874. He was a skilled lithographer and, according to his daughter, the only one of the Kelloggs trained in that trade. He established about 1830 a shop at 110 Main Street in Hartford and was soon joined by one or more of his brothers. In 1836 he went west, and from that time on the work was done by lithographers employed by the firm. This may well account for the unevenness in quality that is readily noticed in a large collection of their prints.

Edmund Burke Kellogg was born May 27, 1809 and died March 26, 1872. He was a printer by trade and was early apprenticed to Colonel Samuel Green, the publisher of the New London Gazette. He was also business manager of the Stonington Phoenix and was connected for a short time with a paper in Toronto, Canada. About 1832 he came to Hartford and was first associated with his brother Daniel Wright Kellogg.

Elijah Chapman Kellogg was born June 13, 1811 and died December 13, 1881. He studied engraving under his brother Jarvis and is said to have been quite artistic, with a number of oil paintings to his credit. His knowledge of the habits and methods of breeding fish was extensive. As early as 1855 he was experimenting successfully in breeding trout artificially. In 1860 he went to Europe for Colonel Samuel Colt, whose ponds were stocked under his direction.

* This date from family sources. The first directory was 1838.

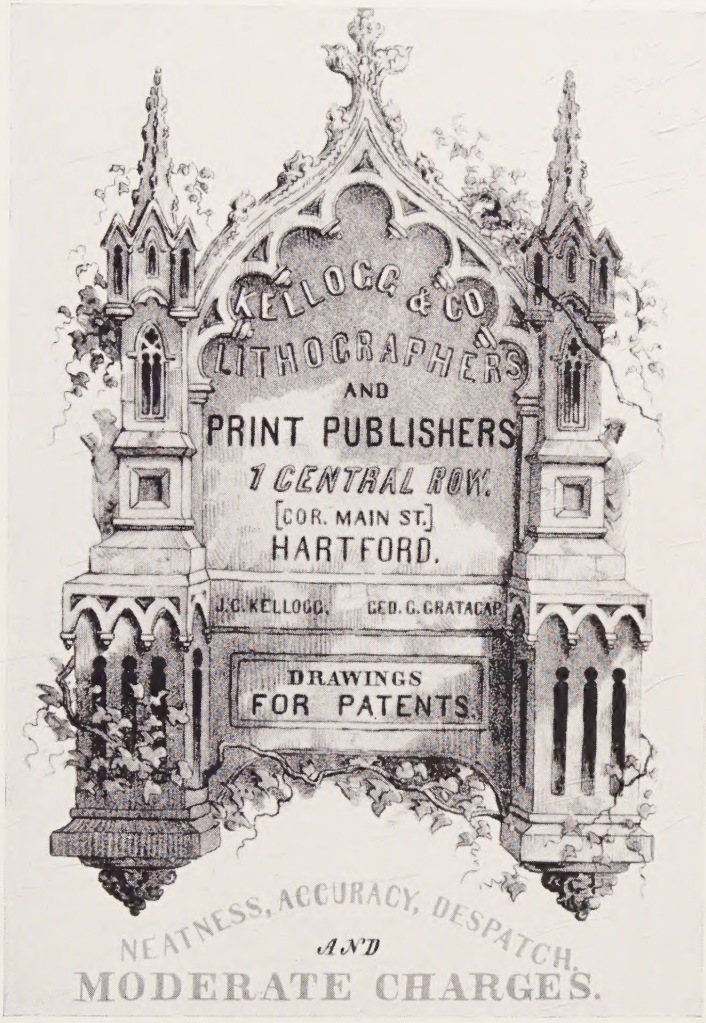
Several of the artists and lithographers employed by the Kelloggs are known. Austin Hall, who died May 20, 1886 aged 72 years, was long associated with the Kelloggs and continued with their successors, Kellogg & Bulkeley. Prints have been found signed "AH" dated as early as 1834. In the collection are some original sketches by Hall plus a daguerrotype of him.



KELLOGG & CO., 1848.

D. R. Brown, who drew the series of six excellent sketches depicting the entry of General Sherman into Atlanta, studied architecture under Henry Austin. He designed the City Hall and County Court House in New Haven. David Russell Brown entered Atlanta, September 2, 1864 with Sherman's troops and was a participant in the events he drew.

C. H. Colburn, lithographer, was connected with the Kelloggs in 1846-47 and later appears in Boston at 4 Cornhill Court. "The Battle of Resaca De La Palma, May 9, 1846" is signed with his initials.

The Kelloggs produced many books, the most prized of which is Portrait Gallery of Distinguished American Citizens by William Henry Brown, the silhouette artist. A large part of the original edition was destroyed by fire and is now rare. In 1931 a reissue was brought out. Lesser known, but of great charm, is a series of juveniles with such titles as: Child's Pictorial Geometry, 1842; Child's Pictorial Mentor, 1842; Child's Pictorial Music Book, 1842; Child's Pictorial Preceptor, 1842; Pictorial Arithmetic for Children, 1841 and 1842; Alphabet of Natural History for Teaching Children to Read; and, Napoleon and His Soldiers, 1844.

In 1838 D. W. Kellogg published Wyatt and Ackerman's Unfading Beauties which contains colored plates of flowers and fruits. It is very early for an American colored plate book. E. B. & E. C. Kellogg were very generous to this Society and many mint copies of their books are in the library. There is also a photograph and early trade card of D. W. Kellogg.

Recently a catalogue of prints from 1 - 500 produced by E. C. Kellogg was discovered. It has long been suspected that sometime, somewhere, such a list would be found. Upon examination it proves to contain works by D. W. Kellogg, E. B. & E. C. Kellogg, Kellogg & Comstock, Kelloggs and Comstock, and E. C. Kellogg alone. From the address it was printed between 1852-1854 and gives a fair idea of the extent of the work produced here in Hartford. Even so, this list is neither complete nor accurate, for prints known to have been produced earlier are not included and in many cases the numbering does not agree. There are also examples of prints issued much later than this that bear a number less than 500; for example: the "Death of Abraham Lincoln" is numbered #259 and yet could not have been lithographed until after April 15, 1865. Whether there were different series, each with a different set of numbers, it is not yet possible to determine. In any event, we have examples of addition of detail, reversal of stones, alteration of caption and prints colored and not colored, which lead one to believe that no complete listing could ever be worked out. We would be interested in having titles of all Kellogg prints not listed, particularly those with numbers. Complete bibliographical data will be gratefully acknowledged and ultimately it will be possible to publish a more complete checklist.

NEWS OF THE SOCIETY

CORRECTION: We are happy to acknowledge an error in the last issue that has been brought to our attention. Peter Verstille was father of William Verstille, a miniature painter who executed the miniature of Jesse Deane, now owned by the Society. We inadvertently stated the miniature was by Peter Verstille.

We should like to call to your attention a few of the speakers scheduled for the coming months. In November, Henry A. Perkins, Professor of Physics, Emeritus of Trinity College, will speak on Godfrey Malbone.

December 7, 1948, Henry L. and Ottalie K. Williams, authors and consultants on old houses, will have as their subject: "Making an Antique House Liveable". Recent books by this couple on this subject include Old American Houses and How to Restore Them which appeared in 1946, and Modernizing Old Houses, just published. Mr. and Mrs. Williams are members of the Society living in Sherman.

At the January 4, 1949 meeting, George S. McKearin will give an illustrated talk on "American Glass". He is a widely known authority, lecturer and author of several books on this subject. We suggest you mark these dates. Members and their friends are cordially invited to attend. The business portion of the meetings starts at 7:45 P.M. and speakers commence promptly at 8:15 P.M.

Many will recall our article on the East Haddam Congregational Church (volume 13, #1). Recent necessary repairs to the weathervane revealed that the juncture between vertical and horizontal supporting beams had rotted so that the steeple swayed in a breeze. Repairs will cost an estimated $8,000 to $10,000. Ways of raising this amount are now under consideration. It is to be hoped they will be successful and that this interesting and beautiful structure may be saved.

The Price of these Bulletins is ten cents each.
